The "House of Cartier" met the "House of Hip-Hop" at a Hurricane Katrina relief benefit hosted by producer Jermaine Dupri. Old-school rap thumped throughout Lenox Square's swanky Cartier boutique as guests eyeballed the pricey products until guests of honor Nelly, Usher and Monica arrived. The event promoted the $1,500 sunglasses Dupri designed to benefit Katrina relief. ★ The Captain Planet Foundation's annual X-MAS Party at The Tabernacle apparently sold out vintage clothing stores all over town, as Atlantans donned platform glitter boots and Gucci-inspired vests to shake their groove things and raise money for environmental education, homeless children and Katrina victims. Celebs noshed on mini bison burgers from Ted's Montana Grill during the VIP reception—followed by a fashion show of archival Hollywood disco garb. Some 1,500 guests got down to the Miami beats of K.C. & The Sunshine Band beneath bobbing mirror balls. —C. THOMAS & B. RILEY
