

The Carter Center Blog

September 27, 2010, 10:47 am

Journalism Fellows Explore Mental Health Issues, Fight Stigma

By The Carter Center

Former First Lady Rosalynn Carter launched a journalism fellowship program in 1996 to increase accurate reporting of mental health issues as a way to fight stigma and discrimination against people with mental illnesses—some of the most serious, unrecognized, and under-reported health problems in the United States and worldwide. To date, 118 Rosalynn Carter Fellowships for Mental Health Journalism have been awarded to reporters and writers on four continents. Each year, incoming and outgoing classes of fellows meet for several days of training at The Carter Center, where they discuss their story ideas and interact with experts in the field of mental health. In the following video, fellows describe important issues in mental health today.

Learn more about the Rosalynn Carter Fellowships for Mental Health Journalism >

Posted in Mental Health, Rosalynn Carter Fellowships for Mental Health Journalism

Comments are closed.

Contact Us | Manage Your Profile | E-Mail Sign-Up | Emory University | Jimmy Carter Library & Museum | Privacy Statement | Site Map

 Carter Center Blog  RSS  iTunes  Facebook  Twitter  YouTube

The Carter Center, a 501(c)(3) charitable organization, was founded in 1982 by former U.S. President Jimmy Carter and former First Lady Rosalynn Carter, in partnership with Emory University, to advance peace and health worldwide. A nongovernmental organization, the Center has helped to improve life for people in more than 70 countries by resolving conflicts; advancing democracy and human rights; preventing diseases; improving mental health care; and teaching farmers to increase crop production.
© 2010 The Carter Center. All Rights Reserved